The Panopticon is a type of institutional building and a system of control designed by the English philosopher and social theorist Jeremy Bentham in the late 18th century. The scheme of the design is to allow all (pan-) inmates of an institution to be observed (-opticon) by a single watchman without the inmates being able to tell whether or not they are being watched.

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month. As part of my work with Survived & Punished, I developed a curriculum unit with contributions from others focused on the criminalization of domestic violence survivors. It is our hope that people will use the unit for political education and consciousness-raising in October and beyond.

12 Rules for Life is a collection of life principles that, if followed, are meant to improve your life. It reached the #1 spot on Amazon's bestsellers list, and clearly it resonates with a lot of people. Its author (Jordan Peterson, a clinical psychologist and U Toronto professor) argues that modern secularism and reliance on science has left a void in answers to important existential ...
